My Message Is ...

#oneSecond

A connection between 5522 people all across the world.

As both a catalyst and indicator of globalization, the internet can be seen as a public space, in which information can be disseminated in seconds. It facilitates cultural transfer and creates new local and international subcultures overcoming geographical distances. It keeps developing its own international and decentralized language with the help of codes and standards. This global network, and Twitter as one of its broader intersections, is a platform for vivid interaction between most heterogeneous actors.

5522 of those actors all across the world hit the «tweet» button at exactly the same second. By taking this moment as a frame, this connection becomes visible and by preserving it, each one of those actors emerges out of the immense volume of anonymous data and becomes an individual again.

#oneSecond preserves the data of this moment on Twitter and presents it categorized and ordered in four different books. While each book highlights one single aspect of every message written and the actor behind it – providing the reader not only with an insight into that person's life but also reveals similarities and connections between nationalities and subcultures – all four books together provide a detailed portrait of each actor.

The project intends to shift the focus from a personalized to a more globalized view on the Internet and offers the possibility to explore.

About the Klout Score

The Klout Score is a single number from 0 to 100 that represents a persons influence based on its ability to drive action on social networks.

0.02% – 1 out of 5522 people
in #oneSecond registered on Twitter in 2006

The font size of each description is derived from the klout
score of the respective person.
